Freeing up screen space When you first start Photoshop, you open up a dialog box that contains a number of different tools (see Figure 17-1). Although the Tools palette has many buttons that you can use, many of the tools and actions you will use over the course of the book can be found in the standard Photoshop actions or actions on the Palettes tab in the Basic panel. To save space on the screen, however, you don't need to see all of the tools and actions. Photoshop really comes into its own when you start to experiment with images. Often you want to make a lot of changes to an image in a short space of time, such as to reproduce an image you like and then change it to something completely different. Therefore, the most important thing to consider when choosing which tools to include in your toolbox is to balance the amount of time you spend doing those edits. FIGURE 17-1: You can work with a variety of tools and actions. Use the following tips to get started on the artful side of the screen: * The Quick Selection tool is commonly used to isolate, such as to select an area of an image and then delete or move it. To get the best results, make sure that the Quick Selection tool is enabled (select it from the Tools panel). * The Magic Wand tool finds similar areas in your image. You can then

In vitro activity of a new nitroimidazole, ABT-702, against methicillin-susceptible and methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus and related organisms. The in vitro activity of ABT-702 (AM-23198), a novel nitroimidazole, was determined against 2352 strains of Staphylococcus aureus, coagulase-negative staphylococci (CoNS), and Streptococcus spp. including enterococci. The agents tested included 7 penicillins and 14 cephalosporins. ABT-702, which is active against most staphylococci, was the most active agent tested; by broth microdilution, the minimal inhibitory concentrations (MICs) of ABT-702 for all staphylococci and enterococci were This invention relates to a paper cassette for use in an imaging apparatus. More particularly, this invention relates to a paper cassette which provides for insertion of a standard sized paper roll used in the printing of large documents into the paper cassette. It is common for imaging apparatus such as copiers, fax machines, scanners and the like to utilize a paper cassette for storing a paper roll. The purity of water is a critical issue in the world. It is desirable that the water is totally purified to prevent many diseases, which do arise from the food or drinks as contaminated with the bacteria, viruses or the like. On the other hand, many countries are required to treat the waste water in order to achieve the excellent environment in which the waste water is discharged because the toxic substances or the pathogens which may be hazardous to the human body are contained. The reverse osmosis is for the former and the activated carbon filter is for the latter of the above cases. Namely, the former is aimed to purify the contaminated water by passing it through the membrane separation. The activated carbon filter is to adsorb the toxic substances in the waste water or the bacteria contained in the waste water by the activated carbon contained in the filter unit. The activated carbon filter is also called as the "activated carbon water filter" because the activated carbon filter is used in combination with the water purification apparatus, such as the reverse osmosis unit. As the activated carbon filter, a water purifying apparatus is proposed, which is constructed to exchange the activated carbon filters exchanged with each other. The water purifying apparatus is composed of an upper body and a lower body. The upper body and the lower body are coupled with each other at a pivot. The apparatus has a roll formed in the upper body and the lower body to rotate the upper body and the lower body relative to each other in the horizontal direction. The rolls have a diameter of 500 to 1000 mm and a depth of about 1 m. The roll is rotated at a speed of 600 to 900 rpm, for example. The activated carbon filter of the "activated carbon filter type" is filled with the activated carbon as the filter medium. The activated carbon used for the activated carbon filter is economically consumed because the replacement frequency of the filter is high. The activated carbon used is very expensive in the market. When the activated carbon is used to a certain level, the activated carbon is scraped by an external force applied to the filter, so that the filter is clogged by the activated carbon. This decreases the water-filtering performance. For this reason, the water purifying apparatus is used for a period in which the change of the activated carbon filter to a new activated carbon filter is needed. In recent years, the activated carbon material is obtained by activating the carbon by making the activated carbon material absorb the toxic substances contained in the petroleum-based substances. In this
