this: `if(Result[0].getTransFrom()==Trans[0] && Result[1].getTransTo()==Trans[1]) //send email to user I have many Trans like that and many Result. How to do that in java? I don't know how to search the result in a database in a good way (Hibernate or JPA). I've tried hibernate search but it's still a problem, I don't know how to use it. A: The following should work (untested) boolean matches = false; try (EntityManager em = emf.createEntityManager()) { Query query = em.createQuery("SELECT trans FROM Trans trans WHERE trans.from = :id"); query.setParameter("id", transId); List results = query.getResultList(); if(results.size() > 0) { Trans trans = results.get(0); matches = trans.getTo() == transId; } } If you have set up your models correctly, you should also be able to add the match-conditions to the query directly. E.g. Query query = em. ca3bfb1094`
